ABOUT THE PROPERTY

Located off the Eglwys Brewis Road, the St Brise Centre is close to the northern edge of what was East Camp, RAF St Athan. It is accessed from the same road via a pull-in. A crash gate currently divides the access roadway from the St Brise Centre; this gate will be removed on completion. The centre will be fenced off from the wider St Athan site.

Understood to date from 13th Century, the former Church of St Brise is a simple space of two interconnecting rooms divided by a stone arch. The larger of the two areas, the nave, is approximately 7.5m x 4.8m (max), the smaller the chancel (approx max 5.5m x 4m). The building is Grade II*listed, owing much to the rare and well preserved 17th Century wall paintings (one of them dated 1654) on white washed walls. The property is in need of repair and restoration though the MOD has managed to prevent significant water ingress and damage to the structure by erecting a temporary sheet roof over the original slate roof structure but the windows, doors, parts of the roof and bell tower are in need of significant attention.

The St Brise Centre is to the heart of this plot, surrounded by a graveyard and encircled by a low height stone wall. One of the covenants grants access to the graveyard by friends and family of the those buried in the church yard. The approximate boundary is indicated in red on the plan.
